Wheat Low Grade and Damp

Weather Break Allows Further Harvesting

Milder weather and strong winds the latter part of November cleared the snow off fields sufficiently to allow the long delayed harvest to again get under way. Last week and the early part of this week every combine in the east and south part of the district and in the Milo, Lomond, Champion-Carmangay and Milo-Lomond districts. West and north of Vulcan very little wheat harvesting has been done, although farmers have been busy combining coarse grains and getting in feed.

A few more days of good weather would see harvesting well advanced east of Vulcan and pretty well cleaned up in the Champion-Carmangay and Milo-Lomond districts. West and north of Vulcan very little wheat harvesting has been done, although farmers have been busy combining coarse grains and getting in feed.

Although the greater part of the snow had cleared from the fields, moisture content of the wheat is high, running from 17 to 20 per cent. The alternate snows and thaws have adversely affected the grade and practically all wheat being delivered to local elevators has been grading No. 5 or 6, damp. The occasional field that was straight combined is yielding "tough" wheat (14 to 16.9 moisture content). Grain companies are buying limited quantities of damp wheat, depending on availability of railway cars. To date, the car situation has been fairly good, allowing prompt shipment of the damp grain, and most farmers are still able to market their wheat.

A very light snow fell in Vulcan Wednesday morning, covering the west part of the district and east about five miles. In the Reid Hill and Berrywater areas combines were still working on Wednesday.

Harvesting conditions are very difficult and the frozen ground has caused many combine breakdowns. Local implement dealers report a very heavy demand for combine repairs.

Prevention of Diphtheria One of Winter's Big Jobs

Diphtheria is still a killer that claims lives needlessly in Canada and throughout the world, points out Dr. C. S. Anglin in the current issue of Health magazine. During the Second World War it was the leading epidemic disease on the European continent both in point of numbers of deaths caused.

In Canada there has been a steady fall in number of reported cases of diphtheria from the year 1944, when there were 3,223 to the year 1949, when there were 799. Similarly the yearly number of deaths has fallen during the same period, from 309 in 1944, to 79 in 1949, according to the Health League of Canada publication.

"The fight against diphtheria in this country has been so successful that many Canadians may never have heard of anyone they know suffering from it," writes Dr. Anglin, who is a paediatrician on the staff of the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto. "Indeed, there are many doctors in practice today who have never seen a patient with diphtheria. In spite of this, however, diphtheria is still with us, bringing suffering and death to Canadian families who have not been reached by safe and simple immunization."

Deserves More Attention
Diphtheria is not a disease of the dark ages and of only historic interest. It continues to play an important part in the mortality figures of most countries, and deserves more attention than it sometimes receives.

Diphtheria continues to occur throughout the world in isolated cases and flares up periodically in epidemics, at which time it becomes a serious threat to all children who have not been immunized.

Farm Accident Takes Young Life

A nine-year-old boy of the Lomond-Travers district was killed on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 1, in a harvesting accident.

David Frederick Dreland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Dreland, was with his father at the farm of Frank Taylor. The lad attempted to mount a moving tractor and slipped, falling under the combine directly behind. A combine wheel crushed the lower part of the boy's body.

He was immediately rushed to the Vulcan hospital but died shortly after arrival.

Mail Early For A Merry Christmas

Postmaster J. J. Price advises that the postage rate on Christmas cards mailed in unsealed envelopes with no message is two (2) cents each this year.

When bringing mail to the Post Office, local and out-of-town letters and Christmas cards (with stamps in upper right-hand corner) should be tied in separate bundles. Patrons mailing cards in large numbers will greatly assist in the despatch of their cards if they will hand these packages in at the wicket.

The return address should be written on every letter or parcel posted.

Your parcel is but one of hundreds of thousands of parcels handled in the mails during the busy Christmas season—please make sure it is securely packed and fully addressed.

Postage stamps should be purchased early to avoid waiting in line.

Dates for Christmas mailings are as follows:

United States	Dec. 8
Newfoundland	Dec. 11
Maritime Provinces	Dec. 12
Ont., Que. & Man.	Dec. 13
British Columbia	Dec. 14
Alta. and Sask.	Dec. 15
Local Delivery	Dec. 17

Again—remember to put 2 cent stamps on your open Christmas cards this year.

U.N. Helps Refugees to Help Themselves

As part of its rehabilitation activities for Palestine refugees, the United Nations Relief and Works Agency has initiated a program under which small loans are made to individuals, cooperatives or other groups for the development of small industries and enterprises which will bring about the reintegration of the refugees. With the help of a loan, the man at the left opened an upholstery shop which helps care for 20 persons. At the right, a lime kiln built from loans granted under UNRWA has provided work for two refugee families, assisting ten persons who benefit from the business.

Crop Destruction Continues

Province To Ask Dominion Ease Duck Regulations

The recently passed resolution of the Vulcan and District Board of Trade, asking for the removal of restrictions on duck shooting in the Vulcan area until such time as the crops have been harvested, was forwarded to D. A. Ure, Minister of Agriculture, and a reply from him has now been received. In his letter to the Board of Trade, Mr. Ure states that such matters come under Dominion control, but that the province is making representations to the Dominion government regarding the subject. His reply in full follows:

"This will acknowledge receipt of your letter dealing with crop destruction by ducks. I have discussed this matter with the Honourable N. E. Tanner, Minister of Lands and Forests, who assures me that he and his Department are prepared to do everything they can in supporting your request before the Dominion authorities.

The matter of bag limits and length-of-season is one that comes under Dominion control and all that we can do is to make requests from here. I can assure you, however, that we will be glad to see that the proper representation is made expressing your views.

I am turning your letter over to Mr. Tanner and he will be contacting the Dominion again relative to this matter. This is not the first time that we have carried a request of this kind to the Dominion authorities."

SOIL STRUCTURE AND CROP PRODUCTIVITY

The productivity of soils is to a large measure dependent on their physical condition, particularly on the soil structure. By soil structure is meant the aggregation of minute individual soil particles into larger compound fragments, says P. C. Stobbe, Soil Specialist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Soils without structure are massive, powdery, or single grained like sand.

In soils well supplied with plant nutrients poor structure may, often be the limiting factor in crop productivity. Surface soils with good structure can be maintained in good tilth and they provide a desirable seed bed. They also favor or maximum root development and permit free penetration of water, thus reducing the loss by run off which causes soil erosion. Good structure in subsoils favors root penetration and permits free movement of moisture through the soil.

In general the structure of the soil deteriorates rapidly when the organic matter content of the soil is depleted and when the soil is worked excessively under unfavorable moisture conditions. If some heavy soils are worked when too wet they become massive and acquire a hard lumpy or crusty surface on drying. Excessive cultivation of soils when too dry will tend to pulverize the soils.

Mr. Stobbe points out that the addition of organic matter in the form of barnyard or green manure will improve the structure of surface soils. Growing deep crops, and in the case of heavy acid soils, the addition of lime will help to improve the structure.

The structure of subsoils can often be improved by growing deep

Webber-Peterson Wedding Rites

In the soft glow of candlelight before an altar banked with ferns at Southminster United Church, Lethbridge, marriage vows were exchanged between Zola R. D. Petersen and Thomas B. Webber. The bride is the daughter of Mr. A. J. Petersen of Lethbridge, while the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Webber of Milo. Rev. V. Eichenlaub officiated at the double ring ceremony which took place recently.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. She chose a gown of traditional bridal satin fashioned with nylon inset yoke bordered with tulle of imported chintilly lace. The front of the skirt was tiered with alternate ruffles of satin and lace with a row of lace circling the edge of the train. Her finger-tip veil, embroidered with satin appliques, misted from a crystal beaded tulle, and she carried a cascade bouquet of sweet-rooted crops and by the installation of drains in the case of soils with imperfect and poor internal drainage. The use of sub-soilers may help to improve the structure of soils with compacted or cemented hardpans.

Reply to Trade Board Letter

Sufficient Seed Wheat In Alberta, Says Wh't Board

A resolution passed at the recent Board of Trade luncheon in Vulcan asked that present stocks of wheat suitable for seed in Vulcan elevators be held here until the harvest situation was sufficiently clarified and the seed wheat shortage overcome.

The Board of Trade has received a reply from W. C. McNamara, Assistant Chief Commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board, in which he advises that the shipment of high grade wheat from the elevators could not be discontinued due to market commitments, and that a Wheat Board survey indicates that more than sufficient seed wheat is being held on Alberta farms to meet the spring demand in the province.

The Wheat Board letter, addressed to the secretary of the Vulcan and District Board of Trade, is as follows:

"We are in receipt of your letter of the 16th in which you advise us of a resolution passed by your Board of Trade recommending that all present stocks of wheat suitable for seed in Vulcan elevators be left there, at least until the harvest situation clarifies and the shortage of seed wheat is overcome.

While this Board has a full appreciation of the serious situation that exists in the Province of Alberta, we would be very reluctant to agree at this time to the discontinuance of high grade wheat shipments out of country elevators. You will appreciate that, as a marketing agency charged with the responsibility of marketing producers' grain deliveries to best advantage, we have entered into contracts and agreements covering export sales which must be lived up to. Many of these sale commitments were entered into prior to the unfortunate harvesting conditions that developed, but I think you will agree that, confident as we were at that time with a large crop in sight, it was prudent for us to take advantage of sale possibilities that were available. We must also consider that this wheat was mainly sold to importing countries which, to a large extent, rely on Canada to meet their requirements. A decision to hold back supplies of the milling grades pending further clarification of our own situation would be a matter of great concern to these importers.

While, as you point out in your letter, a large percentage of the Alberta crop has not yet been harvested, our surveys of the situation indicate that a considerable quantity of high grade wheat in excess of deliveries to elevators to date has been harvested and is being held on the farms. The estimate of these farmer-held supplies is far in excess of total Alberta seed requirements. There is also the possibility—and we sincerely hope it will develop—that a large percentage of the unthreshed grain will be threshed in good condition next spring and a percentage of this spring-threshed grain will prove to be suitable for seed.

It may develop that the supplies in certain areas will be restricted but we believe this problem of distribution is one that can be solved prior to seeding.

I would also like to bring to your attention that we have in effect at this time a seed exchange policy under which producers can exchange grain unsuitable for seed for higher grades available in country elevators. Producers requiring seed and who have low grades available are well advised to take advantage of this seed grain exchange policy, details of which can be secured from any of the elevator agents.

As mentioned earlier, while we have a full understanding of the problems with which Alberta producers are presently confronted, it is our opinion that the situation at present does not warrant an adoption of the policy recommended by your Board of Trade, at least not at this time."

Tuberculosis takes 12 Canadian lives every day. In 1900 the death rate was eight times what it is now.

The double-barred cross, which always appears on the Christmas Seals sold to obtain funds for TB prevention, was adopted as the symbol of the fight against tuberculosis in an international convention in Berlin in 1902.

Hockey Club Names Officers

Frank Hess was elected president of the Vulcan Intermediate Hockey Club at an organization meeting held recently. Ken Loucks was named manager and vice-president, Erwin Schultz is secretary-treasurer, Lundy Findlay is in charge of advertising and publicity, and members of the executive are Glen Gorbous, D. O. Jantzie and Max Kehr.

The Vulcan club is one of nine entered in the Foothills Hockey League this season, the other towns represented being Nanton, High River, Pincher Creek, Staveland, Claresholm, Macleod, Okotoks and Claresholm R.C.A.F.

Some new hockey talent is expected to line up with the local club and practices will commence as soon as ice is available. The Sub-deb Club was given the refreshment concession for all home games.

Local Nurses Attend Institute On 'ABC' Warfare

Mrs. A. Fitzpatrick and Mrs. Laurine McKay of Vulcan were among nurses of the province who attended a four-day nursing institute on "Nursing Aspects of ABC Warfare" held on the University of Alberta campus from Nov. 2 to 30 inclusive. Ninety-three nurses, chosen on a regional basis throughout the province, discussed atomic, biological and chemical warfare as it affects nursing care.

Leadership and instruction were given by a team which included, Peter M. Bird, M.S.C., scientific officer of the health radiation section, department of national health and welfare; Gordon E. Fryer, M.D., L.M.C.C., medical consultant; and Miss Evelyn A. Pepper, Reg. N., F.O.S.R., nursing consultant to the civil defence health planning group; Miss Mildred I. Walker, Reg. N., M.A., senior nursing consultant of the industrial health division, department of health and welfare; and Miss Esther J. Robertson, Reg. N., B.S., assistant superintendent for Canada of the Victorian Order of Nurses.

Nurses attending the course came from a number of agencies, including the Victorian Order of Nurses; municipal and provincial public health departments; Red Cross, department of veterans affairs; hospitals and schools of nursing; and from industry and offices.

Classes were held at the University of Alberta in Convocation hall.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick and Mrs. McKay will, this winter, conduct a 12-hour course for local nurses on atomic, biological and chemical nursing.

Rats Still Coming

Rats are still coming in. Dead and alive, they are being found at widely scattered points in the province. W. Lobay, Supervisor of Crop Protection, warns that although the number reported is comparatively small, we cannot afford to relax our efforts because of colder weather. Rats move anywhere and everywhere at any time of year, and the utmost vigilance is required to prevent their establishment.

Everyone, whether in city, town or country, should be alert to the danger and make sure that not a single rat seen goes unreported. The Alberta Department of Agriculture, co-operating with municipal pest control officers, is prepared to launch a rigorous extermination campaign in any area in Alberta where rats appear. Establishment of colonies must be prevented at all cost, says Mr. Lobay.

Rats or signs of rats should be reported immediately to the district agricultural, pest control officer, or the Field Crops Branch, Alberta Department of Agriculture, Edmonton. District nurserymen are prepared at any time to offer information and advice on rat control. They have in their offices preserved rat specimens on display.

The present spell of good weather, enabling farmers to get at least part of the crop off the ground, has considerably brightened the business picture. Even though the wheat is grading 4, 5 or 6, damp, it represents money and will ease the somewhat grim picture that was confronting some farmers, particularly those who were completely hauled out last year.

Local business should pick up as this new money is put into circulation. Even if the forecast snow puts a stop to harvesting for this year, there will be a much brighter Christmas than was anticipated a few weeks ago.

Manitoba Selfishness . . .

The railway freight rate structure in Canada is a complicated affair. It has been devised with competitive water rates in mind. For that reason it is now possible to ship goods from Eastern Canada straight through to Vancouver at a cheaper rate than to ship goods from the east to Alberta.

The dominion government has a plan to offset this inequality which bears heavily on Alberta. It is proposed to give sections of the prairie provinces, and particularly Alberta, some of the benefit of the railways' low transcontinental rates.

The provincial government of Manitoba has submitted a brief to the federal government objecting to some sections of the equalization plan. Manitoba's reason is that it would make it difficult for some Winnipeg business firms to maintain their competitive position in some markets in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

The main rate reductions would go to Alberta. Manitoba said this would mean that on goods brought in from the east Alberta distributors would have their competitive relationship improved and businesses in Winnipeg and other Manitoba cities would suffer.

Alberta people will not appreciate the stand of the Manitoba government. The equalized freight rates, as proposed by the federal government, would result in cheaper living for Alberta people and cheaper costs for Alberta businesses. Apparently Manitoba is not interested in such objectives being attained.

The people of Alberta who, over past years, have contributed greatly to the upbuilding of Winnipeg and other Manitoba cities, will resent the selfish attitude of the government and the business interests of that province.

A Good Racket . . .

When the Iranian oil crisis resolves itself down to a common denominator one sees that the Premier is attempting to pull off a racket under a respectable cloak. The British were enticed into the field under a long term agreement, investing a billion and a half dollars in equipment. When the wells were drilled and the refinery running, what did Mossadegh do, He merely schooled himself in Attlee's technique of nationalization . . . but without compensation. He has the color of right on his side but he does not want his country to pay the bill. It would seem that Mexico tried the same stunt on American oil interests about twenty years ago. To the Mexicans it paid off in misery. This Iranian loss to the British government and the British people must be charged directly against Attlee and his following. Whether Churchill can now recover any of the loss is now very doubtful. The British will stay out rather than submit to inexperienced direction in operating technique on the part of the nationalist conscious Iranians. Russia would buy Iranian oil but Russian payments would not be negotiable on the world's markets. Should the Russians move in, the Iranians would get nothing and the British would be completely out in the cold. —Camrose Canadian.

For Speech Makers

A Kentucky judge has a good idea. He was at a court gambling hearing the other day when there was a loud buzzing. He explained that he had a little alarm attached to his watch, and it goes off "when I talk too long." Many of us have wished for such a gadget as we listened to far too long speeches. There are some speakers who can start a speech but, somehow, have never learned how and when to finish it. Maybe that Kentucky judge's idea will spread. —Niagara Falls Review.

There can't be said to be much freedom of speech. Justice Wendell Holmes once said, for instance, there is no freedom for a man to call "fire" in a crowded theatre, when there is no fire. Such freedom would endanger the lives of others.

A Letter To Santa Claus Correcting Santa's Records

Dear Santa, I've heard that you keep a big book
In our house 'way up north near the pole,
And all you need do is to go take a look
In its pages to name kids
you know'll Deserve something nice, and I'm writing ahead
So you'll make a correction or two Regarding a boy name of Jones —him called Ted—
Which is him that's a-writin' to you

Partic'lar I'd like if you please would erase Where it says I belong to the gang
Of boys that hooked melons and old Higgins chased From his patch, with his gun goin' bang!
For I have resigned from that bunch, 'cause they're tough, And I'm reg'lar ope in our class
At Sunday School now. Don't you think that's enough
For a mark in your book that I'll pass?

Another thing's troublin' me
—course you would know What it is when it's wrote with your pen—
I went in a-swimmin' when told not to go To the river last summer, but then
That ortn't to be marked up against me no more When December is here and I've said
These things don't attract me the least, so therefore I hope everything's fixed.
Yours, TED.

So very, very fat.

So, consequently, fat is all
There is to him—about.

Leaders
Some leaders lead too far ahead,
High-visioned, unafraid;
Yet ages after they are dead
We tread the paths they made.
Some leaders lead too far behind

And some seem not to lead at all,

I hope that we are not around here.

If all goes well, and I think it should,
The old March winds will seem awful good,
For I'll be back in my stampin' ground,
"Canada", Man! how I love that sound.

I guess that's all for this long night,
So just don't you forget to write,
All the love in the world, to everyone,
Be seeing you soon, Your loving Son.

Coyote Control

Over 3000 cyanide guns have been issued to date to municipal units under the Alberta Department of Agriculture's coyote control policy. O. S. Longman, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, advises that up to November 1st, 23 municipalities, 3 special areas and 3 improvement districts had already adopted the policy. Although harvest conditions retarded the program in many areas, eight of the co-operating municipalities had already set guns, and 156 coyotes had been killed as a result.

Mr. Longman urges municipalities enrolled under the policy to put their control programs into effect with as little delay as possible, and suggests that others give prompt consideration to establishing this control measure in their areas. A patchwork approach to the control of coyotes cannot be as effective as a policy that gives complete coverage, he said.
Mr. Longman advises that 6000 cyanide guns are still available for immediate distribution by the Department to co-operating municipalities. Farmers desiring cyanide guns should make application to their municipal officials. The Department does not supply these guns direct to individuals.

Three Old Cows

(The Calgary Albertan)
Mr. Henry Young, president of the Farmers' Union of Alberta and active in the C.C.F., presented one side of the rural electrification dispute in a letter to this paper a few days ago.

Mr. Clyde Stauffer, president of the Union of Rural Electrification Associations of Alberta, a man with no political axe to grind made a few remarks on the same subject the other day, at the celebration of the turning on of power in the Gilby Rural Electrification Association.

He said that a few years ago any farmer would have thought he had a great bargain if he could have traded off three old dry cows for electrical power. Today he could take those three old cows to the stockyards and get enough money to pay in full his share of getting power to his farmyard. He wouldn't need to do any borrowing.

Swine Improvement Policy
The Provincial Department of Agriculture Swine Improvement Policy is designed to assist farmers, who are not pure-bred breeders of swine, to obtain approved bacon type boars, and thus to improve the quality of commercial hogs in Alberta.

The advantages to be gained from this policy are first: the boars are selected by qualified personnel who are acquainted personally with the purebred breeders of swine in the Province, and the type of hogs they are producing. The personnel of the Department handling this policy have had many years training and practical experience selecting boars of an approved type that will be of value to any commercial producer. No charge is made by the Department or their officials for the location and selection of a suitable boar. This is a service that is extremely valuable, especially to the farmer who lacks experience or who does not live near a pure-bred breeder or breeders having a possible supply of suitable boars. It is often said that the sire is half the herd, a statement with which all stockmen will agree.

Any applicant under the Swine Improvement Policy, whose application is approved, is not required to pay transportation charges on the boar. These charges are paid by the Department of Agriculture the applicant being required to pay only the cost price.

Recent information based on selling prices that prevailed at the Edmonton Sheep and Swine Sales; prices which were established by the farmer-buyers themselves, point to an upward trend. Yorkshire boars sold for an average of $117.31 each. Tamworth boars bringing an average $89.00. In view of these averages purebred breeders are now asking $80.00 and up for Yorkshire boars five months old. Boars of serviceable age are selling from $80 to $140. Tamworths are practically non-available and are priced from $130 on up.

Anyone interested in the Swine Improvement Policy may make application to their nearest District Agriculturist.

Lion's Anniversary Banquet

The local Lions Club held their sixth annual charter banquet and dance in the community hall last Wednesday, Nov. 28. The evening started at 7.30 p.m. with a well attended banquet, when a delicious turkey supper was served. After introductions and welcome to visitors a very interesting speech was given by the guest speaker, Leo Murphy of Chateau, Mont., who is the Lions' district governor. His talk was responded to by Wm. Christensen.

President Glen Racher presented past president Les Christensen and Mrs. Christensen with a lovely watch band and compact respectively, each containing the Lions monogram.

The dinner guests were then entertained with a program which included a tap dance by Miss Gale Jones, a solo by Miss Ruth Stewart and a novelty cowboy solo by E. Krantz of Calgary.

The highlight of the evening was a skit which was staged by the local Lions members. The scene took place in "Hank's Saloon", Hank being very well played by Jess Matlock, complete with specs, oversized nose and handlebar moustache. Visitors to the saloon, "Slim" and "Shorty" were played by Dave Causey and Ted Holmes. These boys were typical of 1890 cow hands, six guns and all. In answer to the cowboy's request, the dancing girls were brought out. This brought a great roar of laughter and applause from the audience. The "girls" being dressed like "follie dolls" in short crepe paper skirts and tops, beautiful blonde wigs, poke bonnets and fancy garters to which were attached jingle bells, were very well played by George Moscos, Fred Cartwright, Gordon Stewart and Ted Erickson.

Their chorus dance, to the tune of "I want a Girl", was done with perfect timing. They were accompanied at the piano by Mrs. D. Causey.

Later, a dance was held in the upstairs auditorium with music by Turley's of Nanton.

line soils. It survives considerable water, but not excessive flooding. However it is quite winter hardy, and is a vigorous growing and highly palatable grass. As a pasture grass it furnishes good summer grazing but is not favored for winter.

Timothy is of particular interest to ranchers of the foothills area in Southern Alberta. It has long been observed invading the native vegetation in the draws and lower hill slopes. Observations at the Staveland range sub-station of the Lethbridge Experimental Station indicate that for summer grazing it is quite beneficial in places where it takes over from less important native species. However, where it invades the higher slopes it displaces grasses which are very important for winter grazing, so it may be detrimental to these ranges.

Timothy hay has been put up for winter feed for many years in the foothill area. The quality of timothy has long been known to fall off rapidly with maturity. The best quality hay is obtained when the grass is cut in the early bloom. It cures rapidly and should be stacked as soon after cutting as possible to maintain quality. It produces hay which is lower than alfalfa in protein and calcium.

The Place of Timothy In Southern Alberta

Timothy is a very widely known grass, and indeed is famous for its use as a horse fodder. However, with the exit of horses from our agricultural economy, and with the influx of newer and better adapted grasses, timothy has been pushed into the background. Nevertheless we should not lose sight of its particular adaptations.

It is essentially a short lived perennial, producing smooth succulent foliage. The bulb-like formations at the stem bases are very characteristic. Cool, moist soils, of medium to heavy texture, are the most suitable for this grass. It is not tolerant to drought or, saline soils.

It survives considerable water, but not excessive flooding. However it is quite winter hardy, and is a vigorous growing and highly palatable grass. As a pasture grass it furnishes good summer grazing but is not favored for winter.

Timothy is of particular interest to ranchers of the foothills area in Southern Alberta. It has long been observed invading the native vegetation in the draws and lower hill slopes. T.B. in Hogs and Poultry

The following report concerning the relationship of tuberculosis in poultry and swine was recently received from Dr. E. E. Ballantyne, Director of Veterinarian Services for the Alberta Department of Agriculture, and is based on data secured from 4 farms in 9 municipal districts of the Province.

Swine are susceptible to avian tuberculosis, and farmers are cautioned against permitting their pigs to run with the poultry. This precaution is particularly applicable in Alberta, southern Alberta included, where tuberculosis infection of poultry is quite prevalent. The following data concerning this subject would substantiate this statement:

The average number of hogs per farm was 39.

The average number of hens per farm was 84.

98 per cent of the pigs were raised on the premises; 75.6 per cent of the owners kept some hens longer than 1 year; only 44 per cent raised chickens separate from the old hens; 95 per cent had hens become sick or die monthly about 1 year of age. 68 per cent of the hog pens were so constructed that they could be cleaned thoroughly but only 23 per cent were disinfected routinely; 62 per cent of the poultry pens were cleaned and disinfected in the spring; 75 per cent cleaned the poultry house before a new flock was brought in; 97 per cent bought day-old chicks; 12 per cent bought some adults. The poultry run in the hog yards on 90 per cent of the premises and 92 per cent of the hog pens; 20 per cent feed dead poultry to hogs; only one owner reported burning dead poultry; swill from the house is fed to the pigs on 72 per cent of the premises; 12 per cent of the hog pastures are fertilized with poultry manure, on 50 per cent of the places, hogs have access to poultry manure in the barn yard. Veterinarians were consulted in 40 per cent of the cases; T.B. has been positively diagnosed in hens on 51 per cent of the places.

Is it any wonder that the incidence of tuberculosis among Alberta swine sent to slaughter is high?

Supplies of Good Seed

(H. G. L. Strange)

Supplies of true to variety Registered and Certified seed, and which have good appearance, will be most scarce this year. It is important therefore, that farmers who desire to buy a few bushels of Registered seed (and every farmer, for his own sake, should buy a few bushels each and every year to maintain the high quality and yield of his crops) should realize that the mere appearance of Registered seed, whether it is plebeian or starch looking, or somewhat shrunken, is no indication of its quality as seed, for the quality of seed is in the breeding and in its germination. Seed, therefore, that would grade quite low for milling purposes at the elevator may be the most excellent seed and on the other hand seed which might grade a No. 1 for milling purposes might be the poorest kind of seed because it may not be true-to-variety and may consist of mixtures of varieties. It is desirable, of course, to have true-to-variety seed which is also of fine appearance, but the appearance really amounts to nothing. If the sacks containing the seed are sealed as Registered, then the farmer need not worry about the quality of the seed even though the appearance may be poor.

Sprouted and Frozen Grain For Livestock

There is a misconception among many that sprouted and frozen grain may be harmful to livestock. Since there will be a considerable quantity of such grain in Western Canada this year it is important to fully appreciate the value of it as a feed for livestock.

The results of many feeding experiments at the Lethbridge Experimental Station and elsewhere and the experience of many feeders have shown that frozen and sprouted grains are not toxic or poisonous to livestock but may have certain limitations as feed.

Grain that has only started to sprout or grain with only a small percentage sprouted will be equal in feed value to non-sprouted grain for all classes of livestock. However, grain that is badly sprouted may be an inferior feed but still not harmful to livestock. Badly sprouted grains will have a lighter bushed weight and have a higher proportion of fiber or hull than non-sprouted grains.

Because of this, it will be less valuable as feed for poultry and swine which do not utilize fibrous feeds efficiently but will be of approximately similar value for sheep and cattle to non-sprouted grain.

Similarly, frozen grains, if only slightly frozen, are of equal value to non-frozen grains for all classes of stock. However, badly frozen grains are of low weight per bushel and are high in fiber. Such grain is lower in feed value for swine and poultry but usually is equal to or superior to non-frozen grain as a feed for sheep and cattle.

Those who are not accustomed to feeding wheat to their livestock should be warned against introducing too much sprouted or frozen wheat into the ration at one time. Wheat is a very heavy feed and livestock must be accustomed to it gradually. Therefore, whether it is sprouted wheat, frozen wheat or normal wheat, care should be taken in feeding it. It is mainly because feeders have introduced wheat into the ration too quickly with resulting death losses, that the belief has arisen that frozen and sprouted wheats are poisonous.

Caution, also, should be given against feeding moldy and heated grain or hay to livestock. Most molds that grow in hay that has been rained on in the swath or threshed before dry are not harmful. However, some are and it is impossible to know whether moldy feed is harmful by its appearance.

Therefore, unless feed is in very short supply molded feeds should not be fed. If it is desired to feed hay or grain that is slightly molded it should be fed so that the stock can pick out the good and leave the badly molded parts. Molded hay should never be put through a feed chopper as the stock are then not able to sort it out.

Stock that are eating feed that is moldy or feed that has heated should be watched closely. If they start to go off feed the feeding of molded hay or grain should be discontinued.

Letter to the Editor

Editor, The Advocate.

Dear Sir:

Boy, oh boy, have we got some government and how. Here I am, over 70, and the dear and loving gentlemen in Ottawa are just throwing money at me.

How am I going to spend it all, is beyond me at my age. I never married, just saved all I could, and believe me I saved plenty. I've got plenty thousands in the bank which can easily be investigated, I don't care for that, but just as a side line I bought some saving bonds, and by some I mean plenty, which you cannot investigate.

Now, I would like to know, and the people in Canada too, why the Government gives more to those that have plenty, and to spare, while others, particularly the unemployed soldiers of the first war over 60 years, who cannot afford the cheapest cuts of horse meat, from their 40 to 70 dollars per month Veteran's Allowance, get along. I have talked to some of them. One told me he has reduced his monthly refreshment to one Coca Cola, but still gets his smokes. I asked him, "How?"

Well, he said, I get up early, and the early worm gets the stubs that fall from the rich. In the morning its easy picking stubs off the sidewalk, when traffic is light, but through the day, I casually kick the stubs over to the sides of the buildings and group them together with my feet, and when I think no one is around that knows me, I stoop and grab. I do not like to do it, but necessity knows no law. If we could get the stubs from the beer parlors we would be well away, but old soldiers cannot afford publicity, as Premier Borden used to tell us "There is nothing too good for us." The way some of them get their old clothes cannot be told. Is it their reward for patriotism. The single old soldier cannot pay his monthly board for 40 dollars, and the mystery is how does the married old soldier get by on 70 dollars?

This small group are alone in their despondency. No wonder suicides are increasing. They are only human beings after all. They have one foot in the grave, why push them in, when the tractors at Ottawa can haul in 500 million at one trip.

In conclusion, and as a good suggestion, I have more money than I need, and would gladly give my 40 dollars every month that the government is going to throw at me, and give it to any old soldier of the first war, providing that all citizens with over ten thousand dollars in securities do likewise.

I would certainly sleep better, knowing that I at least have eased the burden of these poor patriotic unfortunates that are fading away.

Respectfully yours,
Joseph B. Millar

New War Graves Treaty

Canada is a signatory to a new War Graves Treaty extending the privileges accorded to the Imperial War Graves Commission under the treaty signed by Britain and France in 1918. This enabled the Commission to look after 450,000 war graves of the British Empire on French soil and to build war cemeteries and memorials commemorating British war dead of 1914-18. The new treaty grants similar rights and privileges in respect of the 50,000 graves of World War 11. Other countries who signed the treaty are, besides the U.K., Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India and Pakistan.

Captain Cook's Tortoise Still Going Strong

Tu'i Malila, a tortoise presented to a Tongan chief by Captain Cook in 1777, still lives in the grounds of Queen Salote's palace in Nuku-alofa, Tonga. Survivor of a lorry accident and a bush fire, he still receives the customary presentations of food at important festivals. Tu'i Malila has a paragraph to himself in the recently published H.M.S.O. booklet, "Introducing the British Pacific Islands."

Here, in some 100 profusely illustrated pages, is told the story of the "Islands in loneliness," home of nearly 500,000 people, more than half of whom live in the Colony of Fiji. On these coconut-producing islands is heard colorful "pidgin English" which has produced such expressions as "grass belong face", (whiskers), "lamp belong Jesus", (the sun), "basket belong trousers", (pockets) "paper talk" (a letter) and "bullamakau banana" (sausage).

Tuberculosis kills more men than women in Canada but in certain age groups the toll against women is high. Over one third of the deaths among women between 20 and 29 are caused by tuberculosis.
